J. L. Torrey has been quite ill for several days, but was reported better on Monday. Mr. Torrey is 81 years of age, but he has long been one of the youngest men (for his years) in this community, and a stranger to any sort of illness.

Fred Andersen spent Saturday, Sunday and Monday at Seabreeze with Mrs. Andersen and Miss Mabel and enjoyed the rest—something he seldom takes. Mrs. Andersen is said to have improved some in health since going to the beach.

Capt. John D. Pigue is indignant, and not without reason, at the laxity on the part of town officials in framing, or enforcing, needed sanitary regulations. Capt. Pigue lives on high ground overlooking Lake Crescent. Typhoid fever has been present in his family continuously since last spring. All members of the family except Capt. Pigue and one child have had the fever, Jennie, the eldest, being now seriously ill with it.

"There is no question about the origin of this fever," said Capt. Pigue. "It comes from the output of the sewers which is dumped on the lake shore high and dry. One sewer empties almost directly in front of my house. Early in the summer this was remedied some by being carried out a little distance over the lake and emptying into the water. But the damage had been done to my family before the change—while the sewer contents were being emptied on the beach. At times the stench was so bad we had to leave the house. The school sewer is less than a block north and all during the school season it, too, emptied onto the beach. There are several others emptying on the beach. It is an outrage. I have reported the matter to the mayor and council, but no attention has been paid to my appeals. Another matter that should be looked into by the city is the condition of the Cash water pipes. They are never flushed, and at times the water at the lower end of town is black with filth. The city should compel the flushing of these pipes." Capt. Pigue is right. The city council has the power and should enact ordinances to compel a change in these matters. If the town already has ordinances, it is the mayor's business to enforce them. The News knows the sewers to be exactly as painted by Capt. Pigue. The authorities should wake up. Dr. Calhoun when asked concerning the matter, stated that in his opinion Capt. Pigue's family illness was traceable to the sewers, and that for the city authorities to permit them to continue in this condition was criminal negligence.

Water birds which are ordinarily able to float high on the water can also sink at will by expelling the air which is inclosed within the film of feathers surrounding their bodies, thus making them heavier than water. This mechanical trick on the part of diving birds is probably familiar to all who have watched the kingfisher at close quarters and have noted the sudden contraction in the bird's apparent size as it takes the plunge. This is much more easily observed in the case of the starling, which sometimes imitates the kingfisher by plunging into water for food. The shrinkage of the bird in apparent size is very apparent when, after hovering above the surface, it turns downward to dive—Zoologist.

In Memoriam.

Crescent City admirers of the late Wm. H. Sample will read with interest the following tribute from the Albany Argus, written by a friend in his home city. It but accentuates the general impression of his innate gentility which obtained here on the occasion of his first visit many years ago, and which has grown stronger with the passing seasons:

A Tribute.

Born, Albany, N. Y., July 12, 1848. Died, Asheville, N. C., Aug. 19, 1910. Death, the black camel which kneels at the gate of all, has carried William Hamilton Sample off to the ashes of his fathers and the everlasting temples of his God.

His passing has filled the city with mourning, for Albany was dear to him and he was dear to Albany. Every pulse of his life vibrated for his welfare. His money, time, energy were always at the command of this city's advancement along the path of progress. He loved every stone of her structures. He loved every educational institution, revealed in her historical riches, delighted in her musical ascendancy, and found joy in her contributions to the world of science, of letters and of art.

A many sided man was William Hamilton Sample. He was a master of the intricacies of business. He knew the tides and the winds that moved the sea of commerce. He was a student of public affairs and a champion of the fundamental principles of our government. He was a servant of his friends. He was a compromiser with necessity and a conqueror of opportunity. For his own efforts he was his own star; for the efforts of others he was a beacon when friendship lit the lamp of counsel. In combination with kindred spirits he began an enthusiasm and fostered a determination such as move mountains. Of the social amenities he was a living example of the best which Lord Chesterfield taught in his famous letters. It was a man like him whom Cowper described when he wrote—

"An honest man close buttoned to the chin. Broadcloth without and a warm heart within."

In him the cardinal virtues found a personification, art a patron and literature a lover.

A reader of history, he ransacked the world for curious and relics which teach the tale of humanity better than the lettered page. His public spirit knew only the impossibilities of making honor and the limitations of human nature. He was a man who cared for himself only to lavish the fruit of that care with a bountiful hand upon the projects he approved and the purposes he applauded. Various and multifarious are these, more than the public imagines, for William Hamilton Sample believed in the biblical injunction, "Let not the left hand know what the right hand doeth."

More mention of the high honors showered upon him in the Masonic world would bear witness to his lofty character, for no man save a man of traits that are noble, instincts that are admirable and acts that are kindly could possibly win the distinctions or occupy the place so prominent in the career of William Hamilton Sample.

Albany mourns him. Albany bids him a sad farewell on the long, mysterious journey from life to eternity. May the future crown his name with the myrtle it deserves and keep his memory green.

Check a cough or cold in the lungs before it develops a serious case. BAL-LARD'S PECTORAL SYRUP is an effective remedy for all soreness or congestion in the lungs or air passages. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Ackerman-Stewart Drug Co., and J. H. Haughton.

The Telltale.

A college girl told how she had been cured of the ugly habit, when a little girl, or sticking out her tongue when writing. She was working on a writing lesson one day when the teacher called to her the full length of the room:

"Mary you are making capital L's when I asked for capital P's." "How did you know that I was wrong?" the little girl asked. "I could tell," said the teacher, "by your tongue."—Detroit Free Press.

The Best He Could Do.

A Stop Order.

Maud—Tom had me talk into a photograph so he can hear my voice while I'm away. Clara—How lovely! And he can stop the machine!—Puck.

The Aim of a Woman.

The police records show that some women who can't hit the side of a barn with a stone have remarkable aim with a fatiron.—Exchange.

Iceland's Hot Springs.

The hot springs in Reykjavik, though not the most magnificent, are perhaps the most curious among the numerous phenomena of this sort in Iceland. On entering the valley you see columns of vapor ascending from different parts of it. There are a number of apertures in a sort of platform of rock. The water is 212 degrees F., and it rises two or three feet into the air. A river flows through the valley, in the midst of which a jet of boiling water issues with violence from a rock raised but a few feet above the ice cold water of the river. Not far from this is the grotto or cave of Surt, which is so large that no one has penetrated to its inner end.

Rusty Screws.

Screws which have rusted in their bed of wood may be easily loosened by pouring a small quantity of paraffin around the top of the screw. When sufficient time has been allowed for the grease to sink in the screw may be pulled out.

Take HERBINE for all disturbances in the bowels. It purifies the bowel channels, promotes regular movements and makes you feel bright, cheerful and vigorous. Price 50c. Sold by Ackerman-Stewart and J. H. Haughton.

Proving His Authority.

There was an Irish foreman of a gang of laborers who went to any lengths to show his men that he was the real boss. One morning this foreman found that his gang had put a handcar on the track without his orders.

"Who put that han'car-r on the track?" he asked.

"We did, sor," one of the men answered respectfully.

"Well," he said shortly, "take it off ag'in!"

The laborers did so with some difficulty.

"Now," said the foreman, "put it on ag'in!"

Great Scheme.

"What do you do," asked the one who had been married only a few months, "when your husband comes home late at night?"

"I pretend not to notice that it's late, and pretty soon he asks me if I wouldn't like to go to the theater or somewhere tomorrow afternoon."

Starting Encouragement.

"Was Amelia's father encouraging when you went to him to ask him for her hand?"

"Not very. He asked me to put the proposal in writing, so I couldn't back out, as all the others did."
